

Heart Basket Project

Here is the other free template made up into a project. I think I like this one a bit better than the last one, as it is definitely more of a basket.

Just like the last project, this one is so simple to do and quite pretty I think. I simply cut my heart basket from card, covered it with paper and then added an organza bow. The scallop punched tag is tied on with silver cord and a little punched heart is all that is needed to complete it. The handle goes from side to side on this one, which allows you to fit in your goodies!

The heart is lying on its side for the photo, as I didn't think you would want to see my hand holding it up, so try to imagine it the right way up. If you want to make this project and more, check out the Free Stuff pages for lots of free templates, printables and backing papers.

Copyright Mementoes In Time 2012