

Opening Corset Card

Despite fighting jet-lag and getting over a terrible bout of Novovirus (which has struck down most of Europe), I have managed to put together some new projects and these will be featured on the blog over the next week or so. There will be a few more free templates too, so lookout for those if you are interested.

Unsurprisingly, the current theme is Valentine's Day and the new Opening Corset Card Template is one idea you might like to try. Tactile cards are such fun to make and even more fun to open. This card opens at the front, prolonging the surprise of finding your secret message inside.

The card above was very easy to make and is sized so that you can make two cards from one sheet of A4 card.

I've run my shaped card through a Cuttlebug embossing folder and simply trimmed it with some lace and threaded a bit of leftover Christmas ribbon through the holes. This could be a nice card for a friend too, by adapting the colours and embellishment. Here is a similar card, decorated with stamps and heat embossed in a glitter powder and trimmed with black threads and lace.

I've laid the cards flat for photographs but they can be easily adapted to stand for display by simply trimming a little off the bottom. Our next blog project will feature a heart shaped card using a new free template...
