

Pentagonal Box

Here is another fun box project for you to try. This template took ages to do and I have to warn you, it is a bit fiddly but the end result is quite pleasing.

You can use it to fill with goodies to hang on your Christmas tree or just as an unusual box for a gift. I've added a hanging cord and a rather oversized bow to my demo but you can just about see the box underneath!

To make the box, simply print the template direct to card and cut it out. Score on the fold lines, decorate as you wish and then assemble the box, using a good quality glue or tape. I've embossed my box with some gold embossing powder, which was a tricky affair with no acrylic blocks to use for stamping. The end result was a bit unprofessional but I've sneakily turned the box around to the best side.

Look for the template on the 24 Days of Christmas Freebie page.

Happy Crafting and have a peaceful weekend!
